Windshield cowl not fitting right?

To install my coilovers, I had to remove the plastic cowling where the windshield wipers are (see below).

When I went to put it back on (mind you, there are three pieces), the two main peices (left and right) don't seem to fit together as well as they did from the factory. No matter what I do, the seam where they join is not even.

Anyone else have this problem? Any recommended fixes?

Install the drivers side first, then passenger side, then brake fluid cover piece last. There are a couple plastic clips that must align correctly between the left and right pieces also.
